

Stem cells in the skin

We know there are stem cells in the skin (the epidermis) but have not found a way of marking them, so that they can be seen. This image shows where we think they are.

Image: François Gorostidi